Maharashtra Assembly adjourned over Nanar refinery issue

SENAR, CONG MLAs TRY TO TAKE AWAY SPEAKER'S MACE
NAGPUR, JULY 11 /- The proceedings of the Maharashtra Legislative Assembly were adjourned for the day today after MLAs of the Sena and the Congress created a ruckus on the Nanar refinery issue and tried to take away the Speaker's mace. As soon as the proceedings of the House began, Sena MLA Sunil Prabhu demanded that the party MLAs be allowed to speak first on the issue as they wanted to participate in a motion opposing the project. However, Leader of Opposition Radhakrishna Vikhe Patil (Congress) opposed the Sena's demand, saying the Opposition had already submitted a notice for adjournment motion on the issue. He told Speaker Haribabu Bagde that members of the Congress and NCP be allowed to speak on the issue immediately after Minister of State for Agriculture Sadashiv Khot finished giving his reply on a debate on farmers' issues. Vikhe Patil was joined by Ajit Pawar of the NCP.

However, Sena MLAs took to their demand and stormed into the Well of the House. Pawar wondered how the Sena could disrupt the proceedings of the House despite it being a ruling party and at a time when a minister (Khot) is speaking on an important issue. Pawar and Vikhe Patil urged the speaker to take up their notices seeking adjournment motions on the refinery issue before allowing Sena members to speak. Nitesh Rane (Congress) said he should be allowed to speak first since he is the local MLA and his party had submitted an adjournment notice. He represents Kankavli subconstituency in Sindhurdurg district in Konkan.

As MLAs of Sena, Congress and NCP refused to relent, the speaker adjourned the proceedings for 15 minutes. The House was adjourned once again as noisy scenes continued unabated.

Bombay HC acquits man of 'unsound mind' in murder case

MUMBAI, JULY 11 /- The Bombay High Court has acquitted a 41-year-old man in a murder case, on the ground that he was of an "unsound mind" and could not be held liable for his actions. A bench of Justices B R Gavandhar and Kulkarni took into consideration the man's acquittal in another case in which he was charged with murder in 2001, after he pleaded that he was suffering from paranoid schizophrenia. The court rejected the prosecution's argument that if the man was acquitted, he might commit a second murder. The man had last month acquitted the man, a resident of Mira Road in the neighbouring Thane district, while hearing a petition filed by him. The man had challenged an order of the Thane sessions court sentencing him to life imprisonment in 2013. While quashing and setting aside the sessions court's order, the High Court said: "...the appellant was incapable of knowing the nature of the act by reason of unsoundness of his mind and thus, is not liable to benefit of section 84 (act of a person of unsound mind) of the Indian Penal Code". According to the prosecution, the man assaulted his building's watchman on November 8, 2007 with a knife because the latter did not follow his order of watering some plants at his residence. The building was under construction by other residents, but he was declared dead. An offence under section 302 (murder) of the IPC was subsequently registered against the man. The accused's lawyer argued before the high court that while his client did not dispute that he had committed the said act, he had done so under a spell of "insanity". The trial court had not convicted him as he was entitled to benefit under IPC section 84 (act of a person of unsound mind), he said. The assistant public prosecutor opposed the argument and informed the court that the man had in the past killed another person. In that case, the trial court had acquitted him in September 2001, invoking provisions of IPC section 84. The bench led by Justice Gavandhar quashed the sessions court order calling it "totally erroneous". The High Court held that the accused had sufficient evidence of suffering from schizophrenia prior to occurrence of the incident and also after it. (PTI)

Several pieces of evidence have been found against those arrested for alleged Naxal connection to the Bhima-Koregaon violence, Maharashtra chief minister Devendra Fadnis today said. Evidence suggesting a direct link of the accused with Naxal leaders was found during the probe, Fadnis told the Legislative Council here. Police also found some e-mails (sent or received by the accused) pertaining to "conspiracies", the chief minister said. MLC Kapil Patil has also raised the issue during Question Hour, noting that there was also a lawyer who was accused. There is a difference between sympathising with an ideology (such as Naxalism) and actually practising it, he said, asking whether the government will consider releasing the accused from prison until the judicial inquiry in the matter is complete. Neelam Ghorhe of the Shiv Sena sought to know the status of investigation and when a chargesheet will be filed. Replying to Ghorhe's question, Fadnis said: "A judicial inquiry is underway, and hence making an comment on this will not be appropriate." Police will file the charge sheet in the stipulated period, he said. Last month Pune Police arrested five people from Mumbai, Nagpur and Delhi, including Dalit activist Sudhir Dhavale, for allegedly having close links with the Naxals. Dhavale was one of the organisers of Elgar Parishad, organised to commemorate 200 years of the Bhima-Koregaon battle on December 31 last year. Police said they were probing whether the Naxals instigated the violence that took place in the sessions of the Bhima-Koregaon war memorial in Pune district.

Kerala HC rejects pre-arrest bail pleas of 3 priests accused of rape

KOCHI, JULY 11 /- The Kerala High Court today rejected the anticipatory bail petitions of three priests of a church accused of raping a woman, ruling that the charges against them were serious and the relief, if granted, would adversely affect its progress. The priests - Abraham Varghese alias Sony, Job Mathew and Jaise George - had approached the court soon after the crime branch of Kerala Police slapped rape charges against four of the five Malankara Syrian Orthodox Church priests, who were accused of sexually exploiting the victim. Dismissing their bail pleas, Justice R Vijayaraghavan of the Kochi bench of the court said allegations against them were serious and that their release at a time when the probe was at a preliminary stage would hamper its progress. Earlier, the court had directed police to produce before it the complaint of sexual harassment of the woman filed by her husband and other documents related to the case. In their bail applications, the priests had rejected the woman's allegations of sexually assaulting her. They claimed the case was registered against them solely "under political pressure exerted by certain vested interests to derive political mileage". The crime branch registered an FIR against four priests, including the three whose arrest bail petitions were rejected today, after recording the alleged victim's statement. The woman's husband had last month accused five priests of using his wife's secret confession to "blackmail and sexually abuse" her. The name of the fifth clergyman was not included for want of substantial evidence. The incident came to light after an audio clip of the purported conversation of the husband of the alleged victim with a church official about the sexual abuse of his wife by the priests was widely circulated on social media. Veteran CPM leader and chairman of the Kerala Administrative Reforms Commission Achuthanandan and the National Commission for
