Cabinet to examine if NIA can probe human trafficking

NEW DELHI, FEB 27 /--/ The Union Cabinet is likely to take up the draft anti-human trafficking bill tomorrow and decide whether the anti-terror body National Investigation Agency (NIA) can be empowered to probe such cases, official sources said. After the Cabinet approves the Draft Trafficking of Persons (Prevention, Protection and Rehabilitation) Bill, the government hopes to bring it before Parliament in the second part of the Budget Session starting March 5, they said. The draft Bill proposes that NIA probe cases of human trafficking. According to a senior official of the Ministry of Women and Child Development, the NIA would receive financial aid under Nirbhaya Fund for safety of women in order to set up a cell for investigating human trafficking.

The proposed legislation divides various offences into "trafficking" and "aggravated trafficking". The former category of crimes would carry a jail term of seven to 10 years and the latter would carry a punishment of at least 10 years in jail, which can be extended to life imprisonment.

Aggravated offences will include forced labour, bonded labour, forced surrogacy, use of narcotics to induce forced labour, trafficking in the garb of marriage and those that lead to a pregnancy or grave illness such as HIV/AIDS.The draft bill also moots life imprisonment for repeat offenders and three years in jail for abetting, promoting and assisting trafficking.

The proposed law recommends a national antitrafficking relief and rehabilitation committee which would be headed by Secretary of Women and Child Development ministry. It also suggests setting up of a rehabilitation fund and prescribes a process to be followed for repatriation of trafficked persons.

These proposals were approved by a group of ministers in a meeting last month. The group comprised ministries of external affairs, law and justice, housing and urban affairs and, women and child development.The Ministry of Women and Child Development had first released a draft of the proposed legislation in May 2016 for stakeholders' comments. After widespread criticism that the Bill lacked teeth, the Centre made several changes to it.

Later, for more than a year the Bill was delayed because of back and forth communication between the ministries of women and child development and home affairs over the issue of setting up of a national bureau on trafficking.Late last year, the WCD ministry relented that the role of national bureau could be performed by the NIA. Government officials say that in order to empower the NIA to probe trafficking cases, the National Investigation Act, 2008, will have to be amended.

The NIA was set up by the UPA government in 2009 to probe terrorist activities in the aftermath of the 2008 Mumbai attacks, which killed 166 people. According to the National Investigation Act, the anti- terror body is empowered to probe offences under eight specified laws, including the Atomic Energy Act 1962, the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act 1967, and the Anti- Hijacking Act 1982.(PTI)

KOLKATA, FEB 27 /--/ Researchers at the IIT Kharagpur have tapped microwave radiation to create clean energy for large-scale use from nitrogen-rich non-food Sunn Hemp plants. The IIT Kharagpur Bioenergy Lab team was led by Prof. Saikat Chakraborty, faculty at the Department of Chemical Engineering and P K Sinha Center for Bioenergy and researcher Souvik Kundu Paul, an IIT Kharagpur statement said. High-energy non-edible plant sources such as Sunn Hemp have the potential of making available biofuel on a large scale, as a replacement of fossil fuel. The team successfully converted the non-edible lignocellulosic fibres (plant dry matter) of Sunn Hemp to biofuel precursors, an alternative to land-based crops for biofuels, the statement said.The entire conversion, which otherwise takes 8-10 hours, took 46 minutes to be completed by using the microwave reactors in the lab, the statement said. Sunn Hemp is widely grown in the sub-tropical regions of Bangladesh, Brazil, India, Pakistan, Russia, Sri Lanka, the US and Uganda. In India it is widely grown in Bihar, Odisha, Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh and West Bengal. The large scale availability of Sunn Hemp in India along with its fast rate of growth, high cellulose (75.6 per cent) and high energy contents are the key elements of listing it as a top choice for the biofuel industry. The scientists have filed for a patent and their findings have appeared in the globally renowned journal Bioresource Technology published by Elsevier.(PTI)

TISS students across all campuses to go on strike tomorrow

NEW DELHI, FEB 20 /--/ The TISS Students' Union has announced a strike across all campuses of the institute from tomorrow against the administration demanding tuition, dining hall and hostel fees from scholarship students. The association has claimed that students studying at the Tata Institute of Social Sciences (TISS) under scholarship are exempted from paying such fees. TISS has campuses in Mumbai, Tuljapur, Hyderabad and Guwahati. "All talks and mediation with the administration over past many months have failed. The students union of TISS calls for a University Strike across TISS campuses on February 21?. We call for boycotting all classes, field work and submissions," TISS Students' Union President Archana Soreng said. The Centre's Post Matric Scholarship (GOI-PMS) issue stands unresolved since the institute has notified its withdrawal from all forms of financial aid to students, she claimed. "Now students, both current and newcomers, will have to pay their full fees even as they wait for their state scholarship amounts to come," Soreng said. The association has also demanded a notification from the institute about ways in which financial assistance for the PMS students of the upcoming batch of 2018-2020 will be provided.

Explaining the issue, she said that the institute without mentioning anything in the prospectus, was now demanding tuition, dining hall (DH) and hostel fee from scholarship students of the 2016-18 batch. "The administration has also said that the 2017-2019 batch will have to pay the full fee for DH and hostel as the notification was out in May 2017 before they took admission and they were very well aware about the notification. "But the argument cannot be bought as the notification was released in May 2017 in between the admission process, not before the admission process was initiated," she said

Earlier, students and alumni of the premier social science school today staged a demonstration near the Human Resource Development Ministry against the withdrawal of scholarships for SC and ST scholars. The students of all the campuses of the institute have been protesting since February 21 against the administration demanding tuition, dining hall and hostel fees for scholarship students. They have been protesting against the withdrawal of financial aid given to Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (SC/ST) scholars. Over 30 students along with their counterparts in Delhi colleges and universities today demanded not to burden the students through fee hike and fund cuts. One of the almnus, who requested anonymity, said the fees per semester had surged over 100 per cent in just two years and the students were forced to become indebted to the banks through loans.(PTI)

If they (both the nations) don't think of peace, the firing will not stop, neither from our side nor from their side , the National Conference chief told reporters on the sidelines of a function here.(PTI)

CS Row: CM's adviser goes on medical leave, Prakash attends Cabinet meeting

NEW DELHI, FEB 27 /--/ Delhi Chief Secretary Anshu Prakash today attended a Cabinet meeting, his first since the alleged assault on him by AAP MLAs, after asking Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal to ensure that officers are not attacked physically or verbally. The chief minister's adviser V K Jain, who was questioned by police in connection with the alleged assault on Prakash at Kejriwal's residence on February 19, proceeded on a week's medical leave. "The chief minister's adviser has gone on weeklong medical leave. He has not been attending office since the alleged assault on the chief secretary," sources informed. Delhi Police told a court last week that Jain had disclosed during interrogation that he saw MLAs Prakash Jarwal and Amanatullah Khan surrounding the chief secretary and assaulting him at the chief minister's residence that night.However, Jain had previously said he had not seen anything as he had gone to the washroom at the time of the incident.

Hours before the Cabinet meeting today, Prakash wrote to Kejriwal saying he would attend to discuss important budget matters and asked him to ensure "no physical attack and verbal assault" on officers. The Delhi cabinet decided that the budget session of the Assembly would be held from March 16-28. "A meeting of the Council of Ministers has been scheduled (today) to discuss important matters of finalisation of dates for the Budget Session of the Delhi Legislative Assembly," Prakash said. "Since finalising the dates of the Budget Session and passing of the budget are important for the functioning of government, I along with officers concerned, will be attending the meeting," he said. Prakash said he hoped that proper decorum would be maintained and dignity of officers would be protected during the meeting.

In another development, a Delhi court refused to grant bail to AAP legislator Prakash Jarwal who was arrested in connection with the alleged assault on Prakash. Officers in the national capital, including those belonging to the IAS, DANICS and DASS cadre, are communicating with ministers only in writing since February 19. A joint forum of Delhi government employees passed a resolution, saying officers associated with the budget have attended the Cabinet meeting in the interest of the people. However, it has decided to continue only written communications with ministers and maintain five minutes of silence at 1.30 pm, during lunch time every day till Kejriwal and his deputy Manish Sisodia tender a written apology. "Delhi government employees will continue to work through formal written means of communication and continue their protest in the form of a five-minute silence at 1.30 pm during lunch time in all government offices till a specific written and public apology is tendered by the chief minister and the deputy chief minister," Pankaj Kumar, a member of the forum, said in a press meet. "Steps are being taken to ensure the personal safety and dignity of officers while they discharge their official duties," he said.(PTI)

AIMPLB plans silent march against triple talaq legislation

JAIPUR, FEB 27 /--/ Terming the triple talaq legislation as "defective", the All India Muslim Personal Law board today demanded the Centre withdraw it in the interest of Muslim women. The board also announced a silent march of Muslim women will be taken out here tomorrow in support of its demands. "It is a totally defective bill and not only against the Constitution but also against Islamic principles. A large number of Muslim women are worried and lot of protests are on across the country against the bill, AIMPLB secretary, Umrain Mahfooz, said at a press conference here. He said that the board had written to the prime minister expressing concerns over the bill but there was no response.

There are several provisions in the bill which, if it becomes an Act, will create and enhance problems for Muslim women, he claimed. Board member Yasmin Farooqui said a large number of Muslim women will take out a silent march tomorrow against the bill. The bill is anti-women, anti children. It is going to break families. The bill has been drafted in such a way that it will damage families and increase problems for women," she said .She said the silent march will be carried out from Chardarwaja to Muslim Musafirkhana.(PTI)

Book by FBI chief fired by Trump to hit stores in April

NEW DELHI, FEB 27 /--/ James Comey, who was abruptly removed as FBI chief by US President Donald Trump last year, will share unheard stories from his career in a book this April.

In "A Higher Loyalty: Truth, Lies, and Leadership", Comey will "explore what good, ethical leadership looks like and how it drives sound decisions", according to Pan Macmillan, which has acquired the publishing rights in the UK and the Commonwealth excluding Canada. "Using examples from some of the highest-stakes situations in the past two decades of the American government, Comey will share yet-unheard anecdotes from his long and distinguished career," it said. Jeremy Trevathan, Publisher at Pan Macmillan UK, said about the acquisition, "This is an extraordinary look at what leadership under pressure, in the highest of public offices, means from the point of view of someone who has experienced the best and the worst aspects of both.

"Each chapter reads like a scene from the West Wing, except this is for real. It's unusual and riveting to read a book that takes you inside key moments of recent history in such detail." "A Higher Loyalty" will be published in the UK on April 17, the same day Flatiron will publish the book in the US. Comey served as director of the FBI from 2013 to 2017, appointed to the post by President Barack Obama.

He previously served as US Attorney for New York, and the United States Deputy Attorney General in the administration of President George W Bush.

From prosecuting the mafia and Martha Stewart to helping change Bush administration policies on torture and electronic surveillance to overseeing the Hillary Clinton e-mail investigation as well as ties between the Trump campaign and Russia, Comey has been involved in some of the most consequential cases and policies of recent history.

Trump fired him on May 10, 2017, abruptly removing the top sleuth overseeing a criminal probe into whether the Trump campaign colluded with the Russian government to influence the 2016 presidential election that was won by the real estate mogul.

"You are hereby terminated and removed from the office, effective immediately," Trump said in a letter to Comey.

Trump explained his bombshell announcement by citing Comey's handling of the investigation by America's leading law enforcement agency into Democratic presidential nominee Hillary Clinton's use of a private email server when she was the secretary of state. The move came days after Comey testified on Capitol Hill about the FBI's investigation into Russia's meddling into the US elections and a possible collusion between Trump campaign and Moscow.(PTI)
