

It's tradition in Lalu's family to resign just before going to jail: LJP leader

NEW DELHI, JULY 17 /- As the speculations around Bihar deputy chief minister Tejaswi Yadav's resignation grow stronger, Lok Janshakti Party (LJP) leader Chirag Paswan today said it has been a tradition of Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD) chief Lalu Prasad Yadav's family of resigning just before going to prison.

"This is not something new. It has been a tradition of the Lalu family. Till the time they don't go to jail, they don't resign. Even Lalu didn't resign before going to jail. While going to jail, he handed over his responsibilities to his wife. So, till the time the deputy chief minister does not go to jail, he will not resign," Chirag told a top news agency. He further said that the ball is now in Bihar chief minister Nitish Kumar's court and he has to take a firm decision.

"There is no morality in Lalu's family, but now the ball is in Nitish's court. He has always maintained that they have zero tolerance policy towards corruption. However, in this case, it looks as if he is compromising on something," he said.

However, on the contrary, Tejaswi said that the news of political crisis is only in the media, hinting towards all is well as long as their alliance with JD-U is concerned. "That's only in the media," Tejaswi responded when asked about present political crisis in the state.

The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) has registered a corruption case against Lalu, his wife Rabri Devi, son Tejaswi; former Indian Railway Catering and Tourism Corporation (IRCTC) Managing Director P.K. Goyal; and the wife of Lalu's confidante Prem Chand Gupta. Sujata on allegations of awarding the tender for development, maintenance and operation of hotels in Ranchi and Puri in 2006.

The CBI later questioned Rabri Devi and Tejaswi. However, Yadav on Friday said that his son Tejaswi Yadav, who is facing corruption charges, will not resign as Bihar Deputy Chief Minister.

Flood situation has improved in Rayagada, Kalahandi: Naveen

BHUBANESWAR, JULY 17 /- Relief and rescue operations gained pace today following improvement in the situation in Rayagada and Kalahandi districts of Odisha where flash floods claimed one life and left thousands marooned.

"The flood situation in Rayagada and Kalahandi districts is improving. Free kitchens have been opened in affected areas. Air dropping of relief materials is undertaken in Rayagada," chief minister Naveen Patnaik told newsmen. Revenue and disaster management minister Maheswar Mohanty said air-dropping of food materials had started in marooned areas of Rayagada district where road communications were snapped due to flash floods following swelling of the Nagavali and the Kalyani rivers.

While one helicopter was engaged at present, another chopper would soon arrive in the state to take part in the relief operation. Reports reach from the Special Relief Commissioner's (SRC) office here that thousands of people were still marooned in several villages of Kalyansinghpur block of Rayagada and Jangarh and Narla blocks in Kalahandi district. SRC BPSethi said at least 3,000 food packets had so far been dropped in inundated villages and Kalyansinghpur blocks of Rayagada district. He said three teams of NDRF, two units of ODRAR fire service and police personnel had been pressed into the relief and rescue operation. A team had rescued at least 66 people in Rayagada district on Sunday, Sethi said.

"The government has started air-dropping of food packets for the marooned people at Mahajuga, Kumbharguda, Brahmana Sahi, Kumbharsahi and Sai Nagar in Rayagada district," an official said, adding the district administration had also started serving cooked food to the people taken shelter in schools. The district administration of Rayagada has declared closure of schools and colleges for three days in Kalyansinghpur block in view of the flood.

ODRAP, CRPF and fire services units have rushed to the worst affected Kalyansinghpur and Rayagada blocks of the district to expedite relief and rescue operations. Rains triggered by a low pressure over the Bay of Bengal since Saturday led to swelling of the Nagavali and Kalyani rivers of Rayagada district causing flash floods affecting over 10,000 people in Kalyansinghpur and neighbouring blocks in the district.

While water levels in the Nagavali and the Kalyani rivers showed receding trend, the water level in Bansadhara river of Gajapati district continued to swell as it crossed the danger mark near Kasinagar in Paralakemundi today. According to Kalahandi District Collector Anjan Kumar Manik, one death report has been received from Chalyadi village in Thumal Rampur block. The man died due to landslide, the collector said, adding that several roads were cut off due to the rains.
