

Sitharaman-Rahul duel over Rafale

HENNAI, NOV 18 /-/- Defence minister Nirmala Sitharaman today slammed the previous UPA government for not taking a decision on the Rafale fighter jet deal for about 10 years and said she could not spell out in detail what happened due to the delay as it involved the nation's security. Sitharaman said no decision was taken in the matter between 2004 and 2013, during the UPA dispensation after several rounds of discussion. "After being in power for 10 years...you (Congress party-led UPA) went without taking a decision," she said. The minister said she could not spell out in detail about what happened due to the decision as the issue involved the nation's security. The minister said that after the NDA assumed power in 2014, the inter-governmental route was opted for expeditious procurement of 36 Rafale fighter jets in fly-away condition with France after Prime Minister Narendra Modi's discussions with the Air Force. Stating that the UPA government could not complete the procurement, she said the BJP-led dispensation did it, "considering our necessity and in view of urgency." The procurement order was placed "properly" and "by not slipping away" from any procedures. The Cabinet Committee on Security nod was obtained and all formalities were complied with, Sitharaman told newsmen responding to a question on the sidelines of a CUE event. "This government is functioning without any sort of corruption," she said when asked why the Congress party was raising the issue now. Hitting back at the defence minister over the multi-core deal, Congress vice-president Rahul Gandhi today claimed that it was "shameful" that her boss was "silencing" her. Rahul also asked her whether Prime Minister Narendra Modi had taken permission from the Cabinet Committee on Security (CCS) before announcing the purchase of the Rafale fighter aircraft in Paris. The Congress had raised several questions on the deal, accusing the government of compromising national interest and security while promoting "crony capitalism" and causing a loss to the public exchequer. "Dear RM, what's shameful is your boss silencing you. Please tell us 1. Final price of each Rafale jet? 2. Did PM take CCS permission before announcing purchase in Paris? 3. Why PM bypassed experienced HAL and gave the deal to AARated businessman with no defence experience", the Congress leader tweeted.

Five militants gunned down, IAF Garuda commando killed in Bandipora encounter

DGMO asks Pak counterpart to take steps to ensure peace along LoC

SRINAGAR, NOV 18 /-/- Five militants were gunned down in north Kashmir's Bandipora district today in an encounter in which a Garuda commando of the Indian Air Force (IAF) was also killed, a defence spokesperson said. Security forces cordoned off and launched a search operation in Chandroger village in Hajin area of the district after receiving specific intelligence input about the presence of militants in the area, a police official said. The search operation resulted in an encounter when the militants hiding there, fired on the search party of the security forces, who retaliated. "Five terrorists have been killed in an ongoing encounter at Hajin," Srinagar-based Defence spokesman Col Rajesh Kalia said here. An IAF Garuda commando was killed and an Army soldier was injured in the encounter, he said. The Garuda Commando Force is Sahit Shamsah Mirza that there appeared to be a "disconnect" between the intent at the Pakistani General Headquarters which reiterates its desire for peace and the actions of Pakistani troops along the Line of Control, who resort to heavy firing without provocation," a source said. Bhat further exhorted his Pakistani counterpart to resolve this "existent credibility gap" to ensure that peace and tranquillity is maintained along the LoC. The Pakistani Army DGMO alleged that Indian security forces have

Shabana Azmi calls for IFFI boycott to protest against threat to Padmavati director, actor

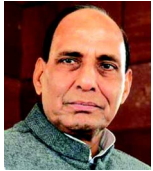

Mumbai, Nov 18 /-/- Veteran actor Shabana Azmi today said the film industry should boycott the International Film Festival of India to mark its protest against threats to filmmaker Sanjay Leela Bhansali and his "Padmavati" star Deepika Padukone. "Calling the situation 'cultural annihilation', Azmi criticised Union information and broadcasting minister Smriti Irani for her silence on the issue. 'Smriti Irani is preparing IFFI dates possible only coz the Indian Film Industry brings such acclaim to it but keeps quiet about Padmavati'. This is exactly like HKI, Bhagat and Congress celebrating IFFI in Delhi after the murder of Sadaf Hashmi in 1989. Cultural Annihilation," the veteran actor tweeted. The actor, who put out a series of tweets on the issue, added that the film industry should come together to support the movie. "The entire film industry should boycott IFFI in protest against the threats to @deepikapadukone SLB and #Padmavati," she said in another tweet. "Padmavati", which is facing protests by several Rajput groups and others, has been sent back to makers by the Central Board of Film Certification (CBFC) as the application for the certification was "incomplete". A leader of the Shri Rajput Karni Sena cited Ramayana's Surpanakha nose-chopping incident and warned Deepika against "inciting" sentiments. Following this, the Mumbai Police tightened Deepika's security. Police have also beefed up security at Bhansali's residence in Versova. The 48th edition of IFFI is being held in Goa from November 20-28.

Rajnath asks J&K govt to shift juveniles from jails to remand homes

New Delhi, Nov 18 /-/- Union home minister Rajnath Singh has asked the Jammu and Kashmir government to move all juveniles, arrested for pelting stones and other unlawful activities, from jails to remand homes and review their cases sympathetically, officials said. The decision is considered to be an attempt to reach out to the people of Jammu and Kashmir by the Union government after the appointment of Dineshwar Sharma as the Centre's special representative to initiate talks with all stakeholders. The issue was discussed in detail at Wednesday's meeting of the core group on Kashmir, chaired by the union home minister and attended by defence minister Nirmala Sitharaman and national security advisor Ajit Doval, where it was decided to ask the Jammu and Kashmir government to work on the cases of juveniles.

After the core group meeting, the Jammu and Kashmir has been asked to shift all juveniles, who were arrested for pelting stones and other crimes, to remand homes and review their cases sympathetically. A home ministry privy to the development, told news agency PTI. The state government is expected to take the initiative to shift the juveniles to remand homes and review their cases soon, the official said. Top officials of ministries of home and defence, chiefs of intelligence agencies, besides Sharma also attended the meeting.

The Centre's special representative also briefed the union home minister and others about his first round of talks he had with various sections of the society there last week. Sharma will again visit the state soon to continue his mission of holding a sustained dialogue process. However, the anti-militancy operations in Jammu and Kashmir will go on even though the central government has appointed the special representative to initiate talks with all stakeholders in an effort to bring a lasting peace in Jammu and Kashmir with violence by Pakistan-based militant groups continuing unabated. Director General of Police of Jammu and Kashmir SP Vaid had recently said that around 170 militants were gunned down by the security forces in Jammu and Kashmir this year. Two Army soldiers were killed and a CRPF jawan suffered injuries in an encounter in Pulwama district of the state on November 2. Three militants were gunned down in Pulwama in an encounter in which an Army jawan was also killed on November 6. Three militants, including Iqbal-e-Mohammed chief Azhar Masood, Azhar's nephew, were gunned down by security forces in Pulwama district on November 7.

Protests against 'Padmavati' spread to city, Rajput outfit burns pictures of Bhansali

KOLKATA, NOV 18 /-/- Protests against Bollywood film 'Padmavati' spread to Kolkata today with an organisation of the Rajput community burning pictures of its director Sanjay Leela Bhansali, and demanding "objectionable" scenes of the movie be deleted before release. The Central Board of Film Certification (CBFC) had yesterday sent back Bhansali's film, slated to be released on December 1, because the application for the certification was "incomplete". The film, starring Deepika Padukone as Padmavati, Shahid Kapoor as Maharawal Ratan Singh and Ranveer Singh as Alauddin Khilji, has triggered protests by Rajput groups in different parts of the country, especially in Rajasthan. Protesters burnt pictures of the film's director at the Press Club in the city Rajesh Singh, president, Bharat Kshatriya Samaj, which organised the protest, told reporters that certain scenes involving Padmavati has "deeply hurt the Indian culture and the values of the Hindu population in the country". "The scenes which are objectionable and harmful to Indian culture need to be deleted before release," he said. Singh said the government should form a committee comprising intellectuals, media persons, representatives of the Rajput community and experts to oversee the film's release. To a question, he said, the protests have so far, he said, the protesters have not taken any corrective action is taken, we will take whatever action is required," Singh said CBFC chief Prasoona Joshi slammed the makers of 'Padmavati' today for screening the movie for various TV channels without getting a censor certificate. On the threat of physical harm to Padukone, a spokesman of the Brahman Samaj, which took part in the protest, said it has nothing against the actor, but the portrayal of the character 'She (Padukone) is an actor might not be aware that the character portrayed in the trailer is a travesty of the real Padmavati. She is a professional actor and hence, we have nothing against her," he said.

Chidambaram mocks at Govt's sudden love for Moody's Nothing to celebrate rating, says Yechury

Mumbai, Nov 18 /-/- Mocking at Union government's elevation over the sovereign rating upgrade by Moody's, ex-finance minister P Chidambaram said only a few months ago the regime had flayed the rating methodology. "Just some months ago, government had said the Moody's methodology was all wrong... A long letter was written by Shaktikanta Das (ex-economic affairs secretary) questioning Moody's ratings methodology, saying they've revised their methodology as it's all wrong," Chidambaram told the Tata Literature Live here today. Moody's had on Friday upgraded the sovereign ratings by a notch to Baa2 with stable outlook, citing the Modi government's various reform programme and higher growth prospectus. The last rating upgrade was in 2004. Ridiculing the way government has reacted to the upward rating revision, the senior Congress leader recalled that for the government "Moody's, whose methodology was all wrong circa 2016". On higher growth, which was cited by the agency as one of the key reasons for the rating action, he said the same agency and government project growth at 6.7 per cent for the current financial year. "It was 8 per cent in 2015-16, 7.1 per cent in 2016-17 and will be 6.7 per cent in 2017-18. Is that North or South, you conclude," he said. According to him, there are three key indicators - gross fixed capital formation and within that private sector investment; credit growth, especially for small businesses, and jobs - which are critical to assess the health of an economy. "But the dashboard is flashing red on all these three indicators," he lamented. Reeling over numbers, Chidambaram said gross fixed capital formation is down 7.0 points from its peak and there's no sign of it recovering in the near future as well. In Kolkata, CPM general secretary Sitaram Yechury said today there was nothing to celebrate about the Moody's upgrading India's sovereign credit rating as the country "lags" behind in all parameters of other global indices. Yechury also criticised the Narendra Modi-led government for delaying the winter session of the parliament and said these were the "signs" that it was not willing to face the House. "The government is trying to represent the upgradation of India's ranking by Moody's rating agency as a sign of progress. But what is this rating all about? This rating tells us in which country the industrialists and investors will have more profit," he said at a party programme here.

"More profit to investors mean more oppression of working class and this cannot be a reason to celebrate. India has turned into a junior partner of US imperialism," he said. The country, the Communist leader said, "lags" behind other nations, even Bangladesh, in various global indices of growth such as education, eradication of hunger, poverty and employment. Adding to the attack on Centre, another former Union minister Kapi Sibal today said that Moody's upgrade of India's ranking is in sharp contrast with the mood of the people. Without naming the government, Sibal said it should worry about the "loss of livelihood of millions" during its tenure rather than basking in the glory of the upgrade. Taking to Twitter, the senior leader said the agency talks about "sunshine tomorrow", while people are worried about the "dark clouds" of today.

"Contrast the mood at Moody's with the mood of the people. While you bask under their upgrade worry about livelihood millions have lost," he tweeted.
