People advised to stay away from flooded areas near creeks, nallahs

PORT BLAIR, MAY 29/-/ Following the incessant rain in these islands, there may be chances of crocodiles straying in the flooded areas adjoining nallahs and creeks. Such presence of crocodiles in the flooded areas increases the chance of man-animal conflict.

So, in order to avert such untoward incident in future, the general public have been requested to stay away from the flooded areas and not to set off their domestic animals on free grazing. The poultry/ meat shop owners' general public have also been requested not to dispose-off animal waste/ dead animals in the nallahs/ creeks as it would attract crocodiles and subsequently it may become permanent residence of the crocodiles.

If any crocodile is sighted, people can contact their nearest Range Office or to the

Food preservation method

In ancient times, salt was used to cure meats and fish to preserve them longer while sugar was added to fruits to prevent spoilage. Certain herbs, spices and vinegar can also be used as preservatives along with antioxidants mostly vitamin C and vitamin E (Antioxidant is a molecule that inhibits or stops the oxidation of another molecule. Oxidation is a chemical reaction that can produce free radicals leading to chain reactions that may damage cells. Vitamin C present in citrus fruits like orange, lemon, and blackberries are the examples of antioxidant.) Certain FDA (Food and Drug Administration) approved chemicals also help in extending life of food for longer times. In our daily life, we all face this problem that how to preserve food or extend its life but by knowing little science we can sort out this problem. For example, in rainy season biscuits becomes less crunchy even if they are stored in a closely packed container or once they are opened they are no longer so tasty. So, to prevent them from spoilage we can put the biscuits in a sugar container by which they will remain crunchy for longer.
